YouTube is the most popular video-sharing website today. It is headquartered in San Bruno, California. The service was created by three former PayPal employees in February 2005 and it has been owned by Google since late 2006. The site allows users to upload, view and share videos. Most of the content on YouTube is uploaded by individuals, but media corporations, including CBS, BBC and other organizations offer some of their material via YouTube as a part of the YouTube partnership programme. Unregistered users can watch videos, while registered users can upload videos to their channels. The variety of video content is growing every day, from vlogs (filming your day), gaming, music, science, to video sketches and other kind of entertainment. The majority of videos on YouTube are free to view and are supported by advertising. Many people today can live on YouTube revenue and YouTube basically became their job. YouTube has a very strong social impact. It is replacing TV and becoming a daily routine for many people.
